[illegible], Aug 11.--The President in his [illegible] regarding the Indian campaign argues [illegible] necessity of providing for the possible [illegible] during the vacation for more troops in [illegible] country. Silver Dollars in the West

NEW YORK, Aug 11.--The Tribune Washington special says: Representatives of Western States [illegible] learn from letters received from home [illegible] that the sentiment among the people is in favor of remonetization of the silver dollar, and especially among those who have heretofore been opposed to resumption, and in favor of an increase of greenbacks, [illegible] is very great and rapidly growing. In Ohio the advocates of the silver dollar are already making their influence felt among the politicians of the State, and advocates of the issue of silver dollars were the most formidable adversaries which [illegible] had in the convention which nominated him yesterday. In [illegible] field's district, where the sentiment in favor of this return is so strong, he is likely to be nominated unanimously. There is also talk of bringing forward a silver dollar candidate to oppose him. Should the price of silver remain this winter as low as at present, or if the price should not bring it above greenbacks in market value, [illegible] are that the sentiment of the people under the lead of prominent advocates of remonetization of silver will be so strong as to make the passage of a bill ordering the coinage of legal tender silver dollars one of the first acts of Congress next winter.

The Appropriation Bill

The Times Washington special says the extension of the appropriations of last session to cover Monday next will be approved by the President as it is now evident the new bills will be passed by that time. The diplomatic bill alone remains, and is [illegible] in the conference committee and it will doubtless be finished to-morrow.

The Collector of Baltimore.

Speaking of the appointment of Wilkins as collector of Baltimore, the Times Washington special says: When the nomination came up in the Senate the two Democratic Senators from that State spoke of Wilkins in the highest terms and at their instance the nomination was immediately acted upon. Wilkins has always been a strong Republican but has never taken sides in the disgraceful quarrels that have taken place between the two factions of the Republican party in that State. His nomination will lead to the reorganization of the Republican party in Maryland.

Butler's Defense.

NEW YORK, Aug 11.--The Times Washington special says Gen. M. C. Butler has addressed a letter to Congressman Jones, thanking him and other gentlemen in Congress for the vindication they have made of his connection with the Hamburg affair. Butler says the residents of the North do not understand to what extent the people adjacent to Hamburg and in Hamburg have been deviled by the negro character of the vexation and wrong of which the negro character is capable of and with what patience white folks have submitted with scarcely any remonstrance. He says the truth is the people of South Carolina have been taunted and threatened and slandered as being capable of rebellion as being the hotbed of secession, the damaged little Washington until they began themselves to think they are devils incarnate, mischievous agitators and restless fire brands. He says this by way of explanation, to show there is something in human nature which will not always endure oppression. After describing the exact situation of the young men in the carriages on the 4th of July, and the determination of the negroes to drive them back, he makes the point that this company supposed to have been a legalized militia company had long since ceased to be a militia company under the State laws, that the State arms that had been given up and had been turned in and stored away for return to the State arsenal; that two months ago they were secured either by force or on forged orders and distributed anew, so that the company which obstructed the highway of the main street of Hamburg on the 4th of July was not a militia company at all, and were arms which they were at the time in unlawful possession of and in gross and open violation of State laws by having obtained the property of the State without sufficient authority. It was not until this unlawful company or its leader was commanded to appear before the proper legal officers that it was discovered that they were determined to resist the law in the same manner that they had obstructed the highways, with force of arms, illegally in their possession. Gen. Butler then makes the point that any man may lawfully protect his life and his liberty and his person and that when this mob company intrenched itself in a building fortified with balls, cartridges, muskets and bayonets they had shown a determination to resist all lawful authority and it became necessary to dispossess them of their arms and to show that they could not override the law. He says, in conclusion, whether an outlaw meets me face to face in the road to drive me out of it by force, or throws himself into a brick house, where his musket commands the road from the window, is all the same; I have the right to defend myself, and this is all that was done by the whites at Hamburg in firing on and dispersing the military autocrats who set themselves up above the law and resolved society then and there into its original elements of armed aggression on the one hand and armed resistance on the other.

The Hawaiian Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Aug 11.--In the Senate to-day Sargent said he had received a telegram signed by thirty leading citizens and business firms of San Francisco, asking immediate action upon the bill to carry into effect the Hawaiian treaty and stating that the honor of the country and its national and commercial interests demanded action on that bill. He said a most lively interest was felt in it on the Pacific coast and delay on acting on the bill was injurious to business. It would be better to have the bill disposed of even if it should be rejected. He gave notice that he should move the Senate take recess from 5 to 7:30 o'clock P. M., and that the evening session be devoted to consideration of the bill.

Sargent's Parliamentary Management.

WASHINGTON, Aug 11.--The Hawaiian treaty bill was brought before the Senate to-night and left as unfinished business for to-morrow, by means only of the remarkably forcible appeal and notably good parliamentary management of Sargent. He obtained the floor by prearrangement with the presiding officer and called up his motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was referred to the finance committee, whereupon West of Louisiana, the leader of the Southern opponents, endeavored to interpose a motion to adjourn, but Sargent maintained his right to the floor and earnestly appealed for action on the bill on three grounds. First, as a matter of simple justice to Pacific coast business interests, suffering by reason of the uncertainty as to the fate of the measure; secondly, because the Senate was in honor bound to carry out the promise implied by its ratification of the treaty, and thirdly he appealed for action on the bill as a matter of personal courtesy to himself, and especially in view of the fact that at least three weeks he had been working like a slave as a member of conference committees, etc., on business of the Senate outside the chamber, and similar occupations might deprive him of another opportunity.

Logan nevertheless argued that the Senate should immediately proceed to the consideration of the bounty bill, and Gordon of Georgia, as soon as Sargent's motion was put, moved to adjourn. He yielded, however, to Anthony, who moved an executive session, but withdrew his motion to yield to Windom to present his report on the Indian appropriation bill. Matters thus drifted into an almost indescribable snarl, which was finally cleared by Sargent's making the skillful parliamentary maneuver of withdrawing his original motion and moving to discharge the finance committee from further consideration of the bill, which immediately brought it before the Senate for action.

The Senate thereupon went into executive session on Anthony's motion, the Hawaiian bill retaining its place as unfinished business, will come up the first thing to-morrow. A single question would have prevented Sargent's withdrawal of his motion to reconsider, but his action was taken so quickly that none of the opponents of the bill thought of it in time. Allison and Hitchcock's amendments added by the Senate to the post route bill to-day will, if concurred in by the House, save the daily transcontinental mail [illegible] also enable Atlantic coast letters to reach San Francisco in six days. Allison's amendment appropriating $25,000 for the Sunday mail between Chicago and Omaha was [illegible] at the suggestion of Sargent, who was engaged on the conference committee.

Members of Congress absent from Duty

Sixty-three members of the House are absent on leave and fifteen with [illegible] and they are preparing to leave before the adjournment, which it is generally thought will take place not later than Tuesday or Wednesday.

Agreement on the Diplomatic and Consular Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug 11.--The committee of conference on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bills this morning substantially agreed [illegible] basis of settlement. Mutual concessions [illegible] made, but [illegible] the Senate [illegible] consultation with the Secretary of State will fix the salaries.

The committee on diplomatic bill agreed [illegible] will report to-morrow. The details [illegible] the consular branch [illegible] to the amount [illegible] was reduced [illegible] the least necessary consulates abolished. On the diplomatic [illegible] the inferior [illegible] similar reductions [illegible] America. McKee Confident of Pardon.

WASHINGTON, Aug 11.--McKee's friends claim he will eventually be fully or partially pardoned on the ground of improper influence to secure conviction. CONGRESSIONAL

Senate

WASHINGTON, Aug 11.

At the expiration of the morning hour, Logan moved to [illegible] unfinished business [illegible] the resolution of Morrill to print extra copies [illegible] the President's message in relation to the Hamburg difficulty and take up the House bill for the equalization of bounties. [illegible] was rejected.

Key and McDonald voted with the Republicans in the affirmative, and Booth, Burnside, Christiancy, Edmunds, Howe, Morrill, [illegible] with the Democrats in the negative. The unfinished business was postponed and the bill to establish post route [illegible] taken up.

The amendments were agreed to appropriating $[illegible] for the restoration of fast mail trains [illegible] N. Y. C. & Hudson River and Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad between New York and Chicago, and on Pennsylvania railroad and its connections between New York and St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago, and also appropriating $[illegible] for restoration of the fast mail service on Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. and on Baltimore & Ohio R. R. and its connection between Washington, St. Louis and Chicago.

Frelinghuysen said he felt it to be his imperative duty to call up the constitutional amendment forbidding the appropriation of any school fund to schools of any religious sects as soon as the unfinished business should be disposed of, though he could not promise that the judiciary committee which reported the amendment would not occupy more than three fourths of an hour in giving their views of the subject.

After discussion the resolution allowing military committee to sit during recess was adopted.

The report of the committee on foreign affairs in regard to the Venezuelan claims was then considered.

Windom called up the House bill to provide means to pay the expenses of the District of Columbia until Dec. 1, 1876, by authorizing the District authorities to anticipate the taxes by a loan of $118,000; passed with amendments that such loan shall be temporary and be repaid out of the first taxes available.

Edmunds moved to strike out after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof a provision appropriating $500,000 out of funds not otherwise appropriated as the government's share of the District expenses for the year beginning July 1, 1876; adopted. The bill then passed.

The chair presented the President's message inclosing a telegram from General Sheridan and letters from Sherman concerning the Indian troubles and probable necessity in changing the force against them; ordered printed.

The Senate then considered the postal bill, and Hamlin's amendment authorizing the first and second assistant postmaster generals to perform certain parts of the postmaster general's work, agreed to. Also Withers' amendment authorizing the postmaster general to contract for fast mail service from Washington to New Orleans via Richmond, and an appropriation therefor. Also Allison's amendment for a fast mail contract between Chicago and the eastern terminus of the Union Pacific at an extra cost not to exceed $75,000 per annum.

Ingalls' amendment appropriating $60,000 for a fast mail service between St. Louis and Topeka was rejected. Also Maxey's for such service between St. Louis and Galveston.

Paddock submitted an amendment as an additional section to the bill restoring the franking privileges reported by him in May. It provides that Senators, Representatives and officers of the House and Senate may transmit through the mails matter pertaining to government business free of charge, and receive matter in the same way.

Saulsbury, though opposing the restoration of the franking privilege, thought some arrangement desirable for the distribution of political documents.

Ingalls favored the complete restoration of the franking privilege.

Dawes said he voted for the repeal of that privilege a dozen times because the metropolitan papers urged it. They desired to furnish all the news and the newspaper correspondents distorted the facts; therefore he would vote for restoring it.

Kelly opposed and Paddock favored it.

Howe favored it and moved an amendment so as to allow Senators, Representatives and Delegates in Congress, the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives to send and receive letters and documents only and not packages and other matter relating exclusively to public business; agreed to.

Christiancy also favored the restoration of the franking privilege. Its repeal was demanded.

Paddock's amendment restoring it was agreed to--30 to 15.

The bill was reported to the Senate and the amendments made in committee of the whole agreed to.

Hamlin moved an amendment providing that contracts by the Postmaster General for fast mail service shall not be longer than two years; agreed to.

Randall said he voted for the restoration of the franking privilege under a misapprehension. He [illegible] to vote against its restoration.

Hitchcock renewed his amendment made in committee of the whole appropriating $40,000 for a fast mail service between Chicago and Omaha; agreed to. The bill was then read a third time and passed; yeas 27, nays 18.

The Senate then took up joint resolution of the House proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the appropriation of money for the support of schools of religious sects and then took a recess until 7:30 P. M.

Spencer read a number of dispatches concerning the fairness of the recent Alabama election. One from Mayor, chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee, asserts it was in no sense an election by the people; thousands of Republican voters being denied suffrage. One from W. H. Smith, chairman of the State Central Committee, denies there was fairness in the election; asserts disturbances prevailed, and asks investigation.

The regular order [illegible] proposed the constitutional amendment regulating schools was called for.

Randolph favored its adoption as it came from House. It would silence public clamor. The judiciary committee's amendment opened a vexed question. As a Protestant he protested against it. It provided no particular creeds or tenets should be taught in any school, and then declared it should not be construed to prevent the reading of the Bible--a flat contradiction.

The judiciary committee's amendment was agreed to--27 to 1. The question then being on ordering the joint resolution as amended to a third reading, was agreed to--yeas 27, nays 1.

Edmunds moved the third reading of the joint resolution take place to-morrow at 1 o'clock, and said he feared to-night it might be lost on account of not having the necessary two-thirds vote.

Davis raised a point of order that it took a two-thirds vote of the Senate to fix a special order, and ordering their reading and the resolution certainly was in the nature of a special order.

The presiding officer (Ferry) ruled that a majority could make an order and that it be read to-morrow. A lengthy discussion ensued on the point of order, during which Gordon expressed the opinion that a two-thirds vote was necessary to postpone, and it would be an egregious blunder to decide otherwise.

The Senate by a vote of 27 to 17 ordered that the joint resolution be read third time at 1 o'clock to-morrow.

The Senate receded from the amendments to the bill for publishing [illegible] in regard to counterfeiting trade marks and agreed to the House amendments, and the bill passed.

The finance committee was discharged from further consideration of the Hawaiian treaty, and the bill was thereby brought before the Senate to come up to-morrow as unfinished business.

Windom, from the conference committee on the Indian appropriation bill, submitted a report [illegible] the [illegible] that it [illegible] modified, and conferees Windom, Logan and [illegible] were reappointed as the committee.

Lord Derby's Advice to the Porte

Further correspondence respecting Bulgarian atrocities was laid before parliament yesterday. Among the most important papers was a dispatch from Lord Derby to Sir Henry Elliott, British ambassador at Constantinople, sent 9th inst., which says it appears to Her Majesty's government that the capture of Saitschar may lead to the occupation of a considerable part of Servia by Turkey; there fore I instruct you to urge strongly on the Porte that it is absolutely necessary that its troops should be kept under control, that the unarmed population be spared, and that a repetition of the outrages in Bulgaria be avoided. You will point out that a renewal of such outrages would more prove disastrous to the Porte than the loss of the battle. The indignation of Europe would be uncontrollable and interference in a sense hostile to Turkey inevitable.

The Servian War Drawing to a Close.

A correspondent at Belgrade telegraphs the following: The toils are closing around Servia. Abdul Kerim Pasha is pushing westward from Gurgusovatz and the Servian General Harvatovich has fallen back at Yankovo and Kn[illegible]sara. Hard fighting began at Yankovo on Wednesday and is still continuing. If the Turks carry Yankovo there will be no important obstacle in the way to [illegible]. The army of the South is faring badly and has retreated from Yavor to the interior. All available guns are being mounted upon the ramparts of the fortress at Belgrade. Correspondents note the fact that many Servians are coming to the rear slightly wounded in the hand and forearm, and believe they shoot themselves to avoid battle. Col. Antich's retreat to Ivanitza means much further retreat. Ivanitza is surrounded by high hills, affording the Turks excellent offensive positions. The fact is the Servian war is about to assume a much less ambitious character than when first undertaken, and is about to resolve itself into a guerilla warfare.

The Aim of Turkey.

LONDON, Aug 11.--The Times special says the Turkish aim is to anticipate mediation by according to the vanquished Servians and to Montenegro, vanquished or not, conditions acceptable enough before mediation could be accomplished.

Law Suits Grown Out of the Schofield Failure

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 11.--It is reported that the badly bitten creditors of the suspended stock broking firm of Schofield & Co. will at once bring suit against P. B. Taylor for the value of the stocks borrowed by Schofield just previous to the failure. It is stated that Taylor bought stock in the board for Schofield and put up for him as long as he was doing well, but when reverses overtook him Taylor drew out. The creditors seem to be of the opinion that Taylor is the real debtor to whom they must look in the pending settlement of affairs of the suspended firm, and the result of the present crisis on many others who are considered in a tight place. But little is being done, and this in conjunction with the efforts of several prominent bears has had the effect to create a depression in values and a somewhat panicky feeling. The Stock Exchange to-day expresses itself satisfied that its rumor of yesterday reflecting upon the financial standing of Senator Jones was without foundation. The failure of Schofield has caused a number of prominent brokers to discuss the propriety of reviving the old rule of the board lately in practice but now obsolete, forbidding the loaning of stocks by one broker to another for the purpose of filling shorts, considering it would remove the temptation which now exists even for the largest of operators, and it will certainly be a great safeguard for their customers.

Troops Ordered to Cheyenne to Guard the Railroad.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 11.--In conformity with orders received from headquarters here from Washington, four companies of the 4th Artillery stationed at Alcatraz and Presidio, numbering about fifty men each, will leave to-morrow morning by rail for Cheyenne. They will be detailed to guard the railroad line, which has been denuded of troops to reinforce Crook. Four companies of the 1st Cavalry, one of which is en route hither from San Diego, and others being stationed respectively at Presidio, Camp McDermit and Camp Halleck, are ordered to hold themselves in readiness to move at a moment's notice. Army men here express the belief that Sitting Bull's forces will be likely before long to scatter and depredate on the railroad line, as he would find it very difficult to keep so large a force of Indians together for any length of time.

Upton's standing wheat and burnt about 150 acres.

Overland Stage Robbed.

JACKSONVILLE, Aug 11.--The South bound stage leaving here yesterday afternoon was stopped on the Siskiyou mountain by two masked men armed with shotguns. One of the highwaymen held the leaders' heads while the other, covering the driver with his gun, ordered him to hand down Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express box and unload the mail sacks. As a matter of course the request was complied with and the driver ordered to proceed on his way. There were four lady passengers on board, none of whom were molested. The robbers broke open the express box, in which they found only $40, but it is known that there were several thousand dollars in gold dust in the mail sacks, mostly from Kerbyville and Waldo, all of which was taken. The rifled mail sacks and box were found in the road this morning and brought here. Parties have started in pursuit of the robbers and Special Postal Agent Underwood has started for this point to investigate.

HOW DIVIDE THE JUDICIAL LABOR OF THE STATE

OREGON CITY, Aug 10, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Some days ago some gentleman from this place signing himself [illegible] advanced the idea that we ought to have a new judicial district created in order that the judge of the fourth district might be relieved of a part of his [illegible] labor. All who [illegible] what appears a [illegible] measure to remedy the same [illegible] that Judge Shattuck has very much more than his share of the judicial labor to perform is a conceded fact. Now while our citizens are pleased with his fearless and impartial administration of justice, it would [illegible] to the best interests of all concerned to redistrict the State in such a manner as to divide among the five judges the [illegible] as well as the territory, say add to the 3d district Clackamas and Washington counties and take Linn from the 3d and add it to the 2d. As to what ought to be done with the 1st and 2d I am not advised, and will leave for some one else to suggest. Would like to hear from others on the subject.

CAMPING OUT IN OREGON--SODA SPRINGS ON THE SANTIAM--[illegible] BERRYING, ETC.--BY AN IOWAN.

Among the customs and usages of Oregon, nothing is more peculiar and striking to a new comer than that of camping out. To a genuine Webfoot this may have but little novelty or interest about it, but to a visitor it has all the freshness and excitement of a romance. This being the case, will you bear with me while I give my first experience in an expedition of the kind? Camping out in Oregon in the summer season is equivalent to a trip to Saratoga or Newport in the far East. Most of the inhabitants of this ultimate verge of the West being of the pioneer class of our citizens and therefore familiar with hardships and exposure, many of them from having "crossed the plains," being thoroughly used to camping out, they think nothing of facing privations that would appear formidable to those of more tender and fastidious habits. Moreover, the circumstances of most of the folks in these parts being tolerably easy, and the climate in the summer season being mild, dry and genial, they delight in emancipating themselves from home routine, assume a larger liberty and go gipsying, as it may be called. For this purpose some go to the mountains, some to the seashore or to such other places as their fancy may direct them, taking tents, bedding, food, cooking and sporting utensils along with them, for there are no houses of accommodation in most of the places visited, and "roughing it," to which they have no objection, on the contrary it carries a charm with it, has the additional recommendation of being economical. Among the Cascade and Coast ranges are burnt districts where the timber being all destroyed the hill sides are over run with blackberry and raspberry bushes, and combining business with pleasure the ladies who go on these excursions commonly put up jellies and preserves enough to last them the entire year. Besides there are many mineral springs of different kinds, especially sparkling "soda springs" strongly impregnated with carbonic acid that are much visited and drank from, and translucent streams and lakes as cool as ice-water and clear as crystal, where trout abound, and grouse and deer as well as an occasional bear, wolf or cougar may also be met with. Cultivating an acquaintance with these denizens of the woods and streams may afford amusement to the males of the parties. On the coast fishing and sea bathing serve to vary the programme, and in many places mineralizing and "prospecting" for gold may be engaged in with some chance of success. The beauty of these excursions consists in the fact that the ladies need no Saratoga trunk as big as a house to pack their finery in; on the contrary, they select the oldest clothes they have--anything is good enough for camping out. That health as well as recreation is to be found in these primitive pleasure parties, I can emphatically aver. Having premised thus much chiefly for the benefit of your Eastern readers, we will now start upon our expedition.

There were thirteen of us in all--three men, three married ladies, three young ladies, three children and one youth, neither man nor boy, but in the midway stage. Our party rode in a light spring wagon intended to carry four, but into which they managed to pile eight--two men, two married ladies, two single ones and two children--besides a portion of the bedding, cooking things and food. The rest rode in a larger and heavier wagon that was pretty well loaded with camping equipage, utensils, food and bedding. We started from the pleasant town of Albany at 4 o'clock in the afternoon on the 27th of July, with gay prospects and joyous spirits, but our pathway was not destined to be entirely strewed with roses, for one of our horses, wiser than we were, proved balky and refused to go up hill with such a load. In the discussion that followed between the driver and the horse the double tree got broken, and we had to wait to get it mended at the wagon shop. In the meantime the other party went on, saying we should overtake them before dark, as we had a lighter wagon as well as lighter load than they had, but they were mistaken, for when we came to the trysting place, a soda fountain on the banks of the rushing Santiam, they no more responded to our invocations than spirits from the vasty deep. Here was a dilemma. It was now near 10 o'clock at night, all around was solitude and darkness except a camp fire or two that had glimmered in the vicinity. Although we had sufficient food and cooking apparatus, the other wagon held our mattresses and most of the bedding, so the prospect of passing a comfortable night was not encouraging. Our driver thought if we went back two or three miles to the forks of the road, we should there find our companions, so back we went, stumbling along in the darkness over a break-neck road, but when we got there all was silence and darkness, more unmitigated than before. It was now near midnight and we were tired, cold and hungry. An unfinished and uninhabited house stood near by, and in that we resolved to rest for the balance of the night. Accordingly we unhitched our team and fed them, lit a fire, ate our suppers and turned into the unfinished house, where we nestled on the softest planks we could select, not any of them quite as soft as a feather bed. To mend the matter, I was suffering from an attack of asthma, and sat up wheezing half the time, to the disturbance of some of the others. Though the night under these circumstances seemed long, in due time it came to an end, and bright and early in the morning we started on without breakfast, in search of our colleagues. We met many teams on the road, but none of the travelers had seen anything of our friends, so after going about half a dozen miles we concluded we must be ahead of them, and we halted by the roadside to get breakfast and wait for them. Here the fates grew weary of persecuting us, and the lost sheep came crawling along in as forlorn a plight as ourselves. They had lost the road and got bewildered in the woods, where wandering about in the darkness they at last got near the appointed place of meeting, but on the wrong side of the river. Here they bawled themselves hoarse to rouse the ferryman to take them over, and when they got over we were gone. However, like us, they did the best they could, and having worried through the night, started in pursuit of us at daylight. Having got together again we gave three hearty cheers and resolved to go ahead. The ladies who looked like bedraggled chickens shook their plumage into something like array, we washed at a pellucid spring near by, partook of a hearty breakfast and started on with hopes undimmed and spirits undiminished, ready to sing with Shakspeare's most jovial of vagabonds, Autolycus--

Jog on, jog on the footpath way,
And merrily hent the stile-a;
A merry heart goes all the way,
A weary one tires in a mile-a.

By and by we came to the tollgate of the Cascade Mountain Military Road, to pass which the nice little toll of two dollars was demanded for each and every two horse wagon. This road I was informed, was made or pretended to be made, by a joint stock company who obtained quite an extensive land grant for the purpose from Congress. After making an apology for a road, which was accepted for the land, [illegible] with [illegible] sold out the road for nearly twice what it cost them, [illegible] to the land, and now the owners of the road indemnify themselves by extorting contributions from travelers in the shape of toll. Thus is Uncle Sam usually fleeced when he falls into the hands of speculators. I wish it to be understood that I here state only what I have been told. If in error, I am ready to acknowledge it.

[illegible] the tollgate we halted [illegible] and dine on Wiley's creek, after which, on starting up a steep pinch of a hill, one of our horses balked as usual. This was our experience at every hill; the cunning old fox of a horse would come to a dead stop, look back with a sly leer, and nothing would induce him to move on till he saw us all get out, and then he would pull up hill like a good fellow. He was in the right, and I respected him for it. The wrong was on our part in overloading him, though it was rather annoying to have to jump out at every ascent and walk, especially when the hills were so plentiful and steep. Towards evening we came to a long ascent called Morse's Butte, from near the summit of which, where the road culminated, the view was fearfully sublime. Two thousand feet or nearly so beneath us lay a gorge or valley, in which the pine trees, though over 200 feet in height, seemed dwarfed to bushes, and on the farther side Green mountain loomed up in dark magnificence 3,000 feet or upwards, while to the left many of the Cascade peaks shot up still higher, a snowy summit overtopping all the rest. This view across the gorge, of course, was gorgeous. Descending for a short distance, we came to a pleasant mountain farm, where the land was tolerably level, though still at an elevation of some fifteen hundred feet above the Santiam. Here we resolved to come to a halt and pass the night at the edge of the timber near the house. The family were old acquaintances of some of our party, and they paid us every attention and civility they could, inviting us to spend the evening with them, which we did. I found them to be refined and educated. The two daughters, charming young ladies, entertained us with music and singing, they having a piano, on which they played sufficiently well to make it very pleasing. The elder son, who was a mighty hunter as well as somewhat of a wit, assisted his parents to entertain us, and the evening having thus passed off pleasantly, we retired to our camp bed under the blue canopy of heaven, for we did not think it worth while to pitch our tent for one night only, and the mountain air was pure and balmy, indeed more wholesome out doors than within.

The settlers on this road being remote from market, and the road in bad condition, they find their principal advantage in supplying the wants of travelers, especially in the way of horse feed. Inducements are thus held out to parties to stop at their localities, by erection of stables and sheds with [illegible] bunks for their accommodation, [illegible] the only profit to the proprietor being in the sale of produce at a pretty good price. At this time of the year the amount of travel on this road is quite surprising for a thinly settled State, over a thousand teams, as I was informed, having passed through the tollgate during the last month. By far the greater part of these were pleasure seekers and [illegible] who leave their dollars behind them. In considerable abundance, though as a general [illegible] they are sufficiently saving of these [illegible] Soda springs that come out in many places along the bed of the Santiam, and in [illegible] places at the side of it, are [illegible] to visitors, they are [illegible] for by the settlers of the valley. [illegible] find their way through a heavy bed of conglomerate rock, composed of the [illegible] the higher mountains, which are [illegible] character. These igneous rocks, [illegible] the lime and sandstone of the [illegible] that were uplifted by their [illegible] underlie a large portion of [illegible] valley of the Santiam and lo[illegible] in the form of a conglomerate, [illegible] largely of basalt, dolerite, [illegible] other eruptive rocks, [illegible] with [illegible] lime, which latter is seen abundantly in [illegible] as calc-spar. The carbonic acid, with which the springs are largely impregnated [illegible] the lime of the conglomerate and [illegible] nels through which the [illegible]. Besides carbonic acid and [illegible] contain in solution small quantities of potash, magnesia, with perhaps [illegible] or iodine, or both, and a trace of [illegible] but I do not wish these [illegible] taken as definite, as they were made [illegible] and on a very superficial examination. [illegible] waters would probably prove beneficial [illegible] teratives in many cutaneous and [illegible] affections and in rheumatism [illegible] quite palatable. They will no doubt be sought after in the future by invalids. [illegible] de Leon was mistaken in searching for a fountain of health and rejuvenation amid the everglades of Florida. If he had imbibed sufficiently from these health bestowing springs of the Cascade mountains, who can tell, considering the large amount of [illegible] endowed with, which they say works [illegible] but what he might be living yet? [illegible] don't speak positively, but [illegible] myself I went to the mountains [illegible] asthma and scarcely able to crawl [illegible] without getting out of breath, but in [illegible] days the attack quite left me and I [illegible] to climb the hills to the extent of [illegible] eight miles a day without [illegible] and this in my 72d year, when the [illegible] and elasticity of health is generally [illegible] gone. Much of this improvement was [illegible] without doubt, to outdoor life in a pure, bracing atmosphere, for we are too much in the habit of poisoning ourselves by br[illegible] a close and vitiated air.

Thoroughly refreshed by a glorious [illegible] under the immeasurable dome of the empyrean, we were up with the sun, got breakfast, packed our traps, and were quickly on the road again. By noon we reached the Middle Soda Springs, where we stopped to dine and drink again of the waters of Hygeia. Here one of the ladies of the party got a little more water than she wanted, for she slipped into the river where it was both deep and rapid, but her husband, as in duty bound, immediately plunged in after her and fished her out without damage, and she enjoyed the distinction of being looked upon as "the Genius of the spring." We lingered about the springs washing away our inward sins with copious draughts of their detergent crystal, till towards evening, when we pushed on to Dr. Alexander's at the junction of Canyon creek with the Santiam. This gentleman is a retired physician of Albany, who finds it advantageous both in a pecuniary and sanitary point of view to exchange a city life for one in the mountains, where he owns a large tract of land, both hill and valley, and obtains a profit in selling his produce to the travelers, disposing annually of some 200 tons of hay at from $15 to $20 a ton. We found him genial and large hearted, as old physicians are apt to be, and have to acknowledge obligations to him for many acts of disinterested kindness. At this place we rested over Sunday, passing two nights there, when we went on about twelve or fourteen miles to Elk creek, where we pitched our tent for the first time, intending to stop and gather blackberries, with which the hills were covered. For two days the ladies prosecuted the fruit gathering and preserving business with considerable animation, by which time they had filled their cans and jars, and then being tired of roughing it, the sentiment for which is easily satisfied when it comes to the stern reality, they began to yearn again for the joys of dulce domum, their music in the parlor and croquet out on the lawn, and came to the conclusion of beating a retreat. Accordingly on the morning of the third day at that camp we folded our tent like the Arabs and took the backward track, which being like the Facilis descensus Averno of Virgil, mostly down hill, was passed over more easily than the same road on the advance, and we arrived safely at Albany late on the evening of the 3d of August, having experienced taken it altogether a pleasant and invigorating trip. For my part, finding the mountain air so beneficial, I should have preferred to stay a little longer, but the longings of the ladies are irrepressible, and I had to acquiesce in their wishes, determined, however, if my complaint returns, to go back to the mountains. WILLIAMS AND REFORM OR LANE AND THE BOOTY SYSTEM

Important as it is for Oregon to cast her electoral vote along with the majority and contribute to the election of Hayes and Wheeler, it is even more important that she secure the best possible representative in Congress Having but one member in the House of Representatives the citizens should see to it that that member is one who will fitly represent their sentiments and wishes The people of Oregon are firmly and unalterably in favor of a thorough and radical reform of the civil service by the abolition of the booty system. This is one point on which there can be no question Though the influence of the State in the general government may be comparatively small it should by all means be on the right side

Shall we have Lafayette Lane with his narrow partisanship and his inherited and acquired prejudices against every effort to lift the country above the Democratic doctrine of political spoils for party service, or Richard Williams, who is a progressive man, with clearly defined views in favor of a return to the Jeffersonian test of honesty and competence? Mr Williams has never failed to make himself understood on this important subject His voice rings out clear and strong for the reform which is so urgently demanded. His word and honor are pledged to the people, that he, when elected, will not be one of the Congressional politicians whose influence will be exerted to break down the efforts of the Executive to reform the country, but that whatever he can do to forward these efforts and make them successful shall be done. Mr Lane, on the contrary, being a representative of the Bourbon idea, has never yet uttered a word for reform, except, possibly, some such meaningless generalities as all professional politicians deal in when they would deceive the people and leave themselves at liberty to break the spirit of their pledges while pretending to redeem them A vote for Lane is a vote for the spoils rule with all its corruptions; a vote for Williams is a vote for clean civil service and a pure administration of the government. People of Oregon, which will you choose? Reform Democrats of Oregon, will you allow your party prejudices to blind your eyes to this vital issue?

TYNER AND CAMERON—AND SO FORTH

A short time since we had occasion to refer to a letter from a friend at McMinnville who criticised our remarks upon the removal of Jewell, the appointment of Tyner in his place, and the appointment of Don Cameron as Secretary of War And now we have from the same source a review of what we said then A bare inspection of this review, which is published this morning, will be sufficient to show that the criticisms of our McMinnville friend are unjust and his positions untenable. The worst we have said of Tyner is that he was one of the Force Bill crowd, which is bad enough certainly to show him unfit for Jewell's place in the Cabinet. It is asked whether a man might not commit such an error as that and still be honest The question is irrelevant, since we have not questioned Tyner's honesty, but since it is asked in apparent candor, we candidly reply that in our opinion a man might support such a measure as that and still be honest, provided he was so ignorant of the fundamental principles of this government, so blinded by partisan prejudice, or so devoid of patriotic attachment to the institutions of his country as to be unfit for any place in the Cabinet otherwise not An honest man whose views of public policy are so unrepublican and un-American that he can give his support to a proposition adopted, if not designed, to overthrow this government, is no more fit to fill a position where those views will have influence in the administration, than if he gave support to the proposition against his own better perceptions of right, merely for partisan advantage, as no doubt many of the Force Bill crowd did. The idea of superseding Jewell with such a man!

And now for Don Cameron The wrong we have committed against that individual is that we have judged him by his reputation Well, that is a pretty safe way of forming an opinion of a public man If very good men ever have very bad reputations—an instance of which we do not recollect, notwithstanding the citation of Hartranft's case—it is a rare exception The fair presumption is that men of bad reputations are not good men So strong is this natural presumption that even the courts of justice recognize it, and take evidence of a witness' reputation in order to ascertain his credibility But if that were not so, if good character were often coupled with bad reputation the appointment of Cameron is only less objectionable than it would be if reputation were invariably truthful; for the country has a right to demand that its highest officers shall be men of good repute, and this requirement certainly was not regarded in the appointment of the son of his father

Our critic seems to us to cross his own path first admitting what of course so intelligent and candid a person would admit our opinions of public men may properly be, and generally must be formed upon other evidence than personal knowledge that is by some sort of hearsay and afterwards denouncing those papers that deal in rumor [illegible] However we are not disposed to press the matter by the letter and contrary to the spirit of our correspondent's strictures and we assume therefore that he means to say that when we judge a man by what others say of him we should be careful to discriminate between what appears to be credible report and what is mere idle gossip or malicious tittle [illegible] We agree to all that and are willing to be judged by it when we report that it is proven by that class of evidence which any journal or any man may properly accept that the removal of Jewell and the appointments of Tyner were highly censurable and the appointment of Don Cameron an insult to the country

THE STANDARD'S NEW CAMPAIGN DOCUMENT

Our neighbor the Standard has a new campaign document It is Boutwell's report on the Mississippi case If one will only admit what the Standard assumes namely that the report expresses the sentiments and purposes of the Republican party it is certainly a very good document for Democratic use but the trouble is that neither Mr Boutwell nor the committee of which he is chairman is the Republican party If the telegraphic report of the proposition presented by Mr Boutwell is correct the Senate will never give the proposition a respectful hearing It is antagonistic to the sentiments of the Republican party as it is to the fundamental principles of the Republic and will be kicked out of the Senate with as little ceremony as any other revolutionary scheme that might be brought forward by a member or committee It will be time to make a point against the Republican party on this report when the party adopts it, and that time will not come very soon The committee on privileges and elections—Morton's committee—reported in favor of admitting Pinchback as senator from Louisiana, but the Republican Senate rejected the report and shut its doors in the face of the pinchbeck claimant In the same way only by a more decisive vote, will it meet the proposition to disincorporate States of the Union for irregularities in their local elections

An individual signing himself Republican but whom we used to know as a Democratic politician before the Republican party had any offices to give finds fault with our remarks on the proposition to have the Federal government run the state elections He does not pretend to controvert the position we take, but fears such articles may injure the party The party has not taken a stand in favor of the proposition against which we have directed our remarks, and therefore can not be injured by them and if it should take such a stand it ought to be injured and not only injured but destroyed If anybody Republican or Democrat, thinks he can successfully controvert our position, he can have the use of our columns for that purpose and we promise to confess our error and as stoutly maintain the other side when he has accomplished his task But if there is nothing to be advanced against our views except this puerile twaddle about 'the party,' the discussion may as well be considered closed We have neither appreciation of nor respect for the argument that a thing which is wrong in itself may be right as a party measure

Years ago we read with all the interest of romantic youth a beautiful little poem 'The Old Canoe' by Albert Pike Re-reading it now, when life has passed from a vision into a hard reality and the face we see reflected in the water as we lean over the side of the canoe is not the face that then gazed up into ours, it has only a deeper significance and a more potent charm We reprint it this morning—without so much as asking leave from Gen Pike who is in the city—not so much for those who never read it as for those who, like us will see in it an old and familiar picture that has improved under the touch of time

The Standard facetiously asks why we do not "go the whole hog," since we oppose Boutwell's proposition to dissolve the Union by Congressional enactment The editor of the Standard is certainly not a very attentive reader of the OREGONIAN, or he would have observed that we do go the entire swine in opposition to everything, no matter under what name it presents itself, which tends to undermine and overthrow the principles of the Republic That is why we oppose the Democratic party.

SATURDAY MORNING AUGUST 12 1876

CITY.

HALF FARE TO THE [illegible].—Arrangements have been made with the [illegible] railroad and also with the Oregon Central by which ministers their wives and [illegible] visit to the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church which convenes at Albany August [illegible] will be passed over the roads at half the usual rates. Particular attention is called to the conditions upon which such [illegible] will be obtained. The members of said Conference and the visitors thereto must present certificates to the agents at the stations along the line of the roads upon which certificates they will be sold special round trip tickets at full fare one way. Those getting on the trains without these special tickets will be charged full each way. Tickets to be good from Aug 21st to Aug 30th—both days inclusive. Rev Isaac Dillon of the Advocate office is authorized to issue the certificates to whom application must be made by all persons who wish to avail themselves of these terms. The Northern Pacific Railroad Company have also extended a similar favor.

COLUMBIA RIVER CONFERENCE.—In speaking of this gathering of ministers the Advocate says: "This body is now holding its annual session at La Grande. Bishop Harris was expected to preside but whether he was able to reach the seat of conference in time we do not know. With its new boundary lines this conference will make a new start along the line of progress and victory. Should any railroad line pass through this conference as [illegible] one must it will tend to open up and fill up one of the finest countries in the world for grazing, agriculture and minerals. At present it would seem to be remote from market and hence all grains and fruits are [illegible] low. When such is the case the pressure is felt upon all the interests of the country. There as in this conference more [illegible] help is needed, that the ministers be not driven from their fields of labor for want of funds to meet the current expenses of their families."

ARRIVALS.—The following are the arrivals at the Seaside House from the 1st to the 8th of August. From Portland—Isam White, L [illegible]smith, Aug Goldsmith, Davis Burnside, Mrs Wm Strong, R Jacobs wife, children and servant, Colonel George H Weeks wife and [illegible]; Mrs Mesick, J Loewenberg, F H [illegible], W. Jackson, Captain George H. Flanders and family, Mrs C Couch, Fred C Hun[illegible], Mrs Edwin Russell and nephew, Mrs [illegible] and family, Dr J C Hawthorne and family, W Joel Moran, Miss Wilson, Ru[illegible] Goldsmith, San Francisco; William H [illegible], Fort Clatsop; Bishop and Mrs Hills, Victoria. Mr Olmstead the proprietor of the house writes: "The great sport this week is catching crabs in the creek. Parties with the [illegible] catch from two to three hundred in a couple of hours. Isam White and party caught two hundred to-day all sizes from two ounces to four pounds in weight."

SETTING THE MATTER RIGHT.—Thursday's Standard contained an item relative to the arrival in this city from Astoria of a young girl who left the family where she was staying on account of harsh treatment. On arriving here she was taken in charge by the Sisters of [illegible] Hospital. The item referred to made some reflections upon the lady with whom the young woman was staying in Astoria, which called out the following note from the girl: "I wish to contradict what was published in the Standard. That Mrs Graham treated me harshly while I was living with her; she never did but on the contrary she always treated me as her own child. I always ate with the family. She always sent me to school and she clothed me very comfortably. I am sorry that I caused Mrs Graham so much trouble and grief. I am very much grieved that I followed bad advice.
MARY ALLENDER."

ECONOMICAL EXPERIMENT.—A gentleman residing not a thousand miles from this city, who has been spending a couple of weeks very pleasantly at one of the watering places, being unable in consequence of the dull times to take his family at home, has had fifteen pounds of epsom salts dissolved in a barrel of petroleum and sent up to his house as a water brought from the mineral springs to be taken by his wife in doses of a quart before each meal, which he says will do her as much good as if she had gone to the springs and is a great deal better for him in many ways. Economy is wealth, don't you see.

APPOINTMENTS.—The following are the Episcopal appointments during August: 13th—Walla Walla, W T; 14th, Weston, Oregon; [illegible] Summerville, Oregon; 18th, La Grande; 20th, A M, Cove; P M, Union. Following are the missionary appointments for the month: 13th, Tacoma, Rev J [illegible]wood; Kalama, Rev J R W Sellwood; Olympia, Rev George Burton; 20th, [illegible] Rev. George Burton; Tacoma, Rev J R W Sellwood; Oregon City, Rev J R W Sellwood; 27th, Tacoma, Rev J W Sellwood; Astoria, Rev J R W Sellwood.

CULPABLE NEGLECT.—The San Francisco [illegible] of the 8th says: "It is alleged that the staterooms of the steamer George W. Elder now undergoing repairs at the Folsom street wharf are so badly arranged that in the event of [illegible] there would be no outlet for passengers excepting by the small windows or 'portholes.'" If this is true the company will no doubt make the required alterations for the convenience and safety of the traveling public.

The funeral was largely attended. Rev R. Bentley conducted the ceremonies.

NEW GIG.—LaChapelle is now engaged in building a new government gig which when completed will be taken to Fort Wrangel. The gig is 28 feet long, 5½ feet wide and 2½ feet deep and has six oars. The gig will be completed and ready for shipment in about two weeks.

BRIEF NOTES.

Some new idea in campaign songs is wanted.

A number of sidewalks are being improved now.

Race this afternoon over the East Portland Trotting Park.

Quantities of new wheat are arriving daily from east of the mountains.

The Orient brought down a large number of sheep and wheat last night.

From a [illegible] pictorial point of view the season has been a miserable failure.

A picnic took place yesterday at Clackamas, and wound up with a ball there last night.

The chicken step is the latest gait affected by fashionable females at watering places.

Large numbers of Chinamen are arriving here every day from the fisheries down the Columbia.

Grand excursion to the Cascades by the Portland Turn Verein Society on the 3d of September.

Several workmen were engaged late last night in fitting in a crank pin on the steamer Dixie Thompson.

The Bonita steamed away last evening for Astoria and the Seaside having on board a number of excursionists.

H D Sanborn, Mark A King, F A Cronin and a number of other Portlanders arrived here on the Astoria boat.

People who abstain from going to expensive watering places these days can put their money into coal to good advantage.

During the present week the sum of $17 [illegible] has been added to the Rodney Morris memorial fund by two contributions.

"Hold the Fort" has been remodeled for campaign purposes and is also doing duty for the "Lancers" at watering places.

Mrs Smallden, the unfortunate female inebriate, was arrested last evening in a state of beastly intoxication and lodged in jail.

It is expected an improvement will be made in the northern mails as the deputy postal agent has given the route an overhauling.

Rev H Patterson and wife of the Oregon Conference having made a visit to their friends in Illinois, have returned in safety and health.

That familiar line of poetry, "Woodman Spare that Tree," has little force with regard to cutting down the dead shade trees about the city.

The elegant steamer G W Elder will be placed on the line in about three weeks. It is calculated that she will make the trip in less than 5[illegible] hours.

The Holy Communion was administered last Sunday in the Good Samaritan Hospital to six persons, two of whom were patients in the institution.

Every day the great advantages—commercially and otherwise—derived from the new telegraphic line between Astoria and Portland are becoming more apparent.

Last evening the pile driver was employed in driving piles around LaChapelle's boat house to hold it in its proper position and not allow the pontoon to swing around.

One of the men employed about the new brick building now in process of construction in East Portland met with a fall Thursday but fortunately escaped with slight injury.

Rev D K Nesbit who was formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church at Corvallis and well known in this city is at present installed as pastor of Hazlewood church, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dr Wilson's residence has been raised about ten feet higher than it formerly stood and a new brick foundation is being built. The doctor is taking time by the traditional forelock and preparing for another flood.

A letter from Milwaukie states that the smallpox is extremely prevalent there. Near the postoffice there are two families nearly all of whom have been taken down. Those who can get away from the infected region are doing so.

The store of Mr Oglesby at Wilhoit's Springs, was burglarized a few nights ago, and a quantity of tobacco, nuts and cigars taken away. Mrs Oglesby while out picking berries, was fortunate enough to find most of the missing property.

The evening cotemporary is authority for the statement that the Simpson Bros who are interested with Capt Flavel in the bar pilotage at the mouth of the Columbia contemplate bringing hither the tug Escort which is much more powerful than either the Astoria or Brenham.

To Mr H C Hoberg of the Shoalwater Bay Yacht Club, the credit is due for the excellent management of the recent ball at that place, a fact our representative overlooked in his notes. The only objectionable feature of the affair was the excessive charges made by the club and at the hotel of which many visitors complained. The club will consider the matter and be more lenient on future occasions and thus prevent fault finding.

Information is wanted of William Kremer (or Krammer), who left Iowa about twenty years ago, then in his eighteenth year. It is believed by his relatives that he is somewhere in Oregon, and they are very desirous of hearing from him. It will be to his advantage to write to, or call on, C. Gray, Halsey, Oregon.

The wife of Fred Bunn, who resides a few miles northwest of McMinnville has become violently insane and was committed to the asylum a few days ago. She attacked her husband with a knife and inflicted a severe wound on his neck. At times however reason partially returns and it is hoped that skillful treatment will completely restore her.

One day last week a Mr Jones while on his way to Nestucca ran his team out of the road on the mountain side and sent his wagon rolling down a declivity forty or fifty feet. The thing brought up against a log that happened to be in the way or it might have gone on some distance further with a destructive result. As it was there was not much damage done.

John Crimmin of Yamhill county, Oregon, wants to know if anybody knows the whereabouts of his mother or any of his four sisters, whom he left at Cumminsville, Hamilton county, Ohio. Two of his sisters were married—one to James Marks and the other to Martin Wiley, and the other two girls, Bridget and Kate, were unmarried. Since John left home his mother also remarried and became Mrs O'Neill. The last time John heard from home was in 1856.

A correspondent informs the Cultivator that Mr James Forgey, living some six miles northeast of Scio, is the owner and inventor of a fruit dryer which we think deserves notice through the press. The dryer when completed costs less than $600. Its capacity is sixty bushels per day, employs while in full operation two men and three women, thus showing a larger capacity to the force employed than any other dryer in the State. The fruit is pronounced by good judges equal to either the Alden or Plummer fruit.

Just as the McMinnville Reporter went to press last Thursday morning it was learned that the large warehouse, known as Gates and Olds' warehouse at St Joseph took fire at about half past seven o'clock that morning and was burned to the ground together with its contents consisting of 1000 bushels of wheat belonging to Hathaway Yocum of Bellevue and a lot of hay. It was with difficulty that the depot building was saved. This warehouse was the property of Mr J H Olds and Dr Watts and was uninsured at the time of its destruction, a policy having expired not many days ago. Some hay that was stored in the building debarred insurance men from taking a risk on it and there has been quite a wrangle between the proprietors and the owners of the hay to get the hay removed and allow the building to be insured. The matter was settled finally and the hay was to have been removed that day. But the fiery fiend saved them the trouble and dispensed with the necessity of insurance. No other cause but incendiarism is mentioned in connection with the casualty. The loss is placed at $[illegible]000.

IN THE MATTER OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE.

McMINNVILLE, Aug [illegible] 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your paper of the [illegible] is an article under the above caption based on a private letter I wrote to you. As you have honored me with a public castigation I presume you will allow a word of explanation.

Your strictures are founded on a misapprehension of my letter. I did not say that you should withhold adverse criticism of Mr Cameron and Mr Tyner until you had personal knowledge of their dishonesty, for it is not to be expected that an editor however well he may be informed have a personal acquaintance with all our public officers. I did say that if you knew of anything bad done by these gentlemen it would be well to publish it. I object to the method of acquiring this knowledge. All I wanted was that you possessed that information [illegible] that you did not depend on sarcastic insinuations and electioneering clap trap as a basis for your animadversions.

I suppose you have told the world you know about these men. You say that Mr Tyner was one of the crowd that endeavored to inflict the infamous Force Bill upon the country. Admitted. I think few intelligent persons are ready to say that all who advocated that bill are dishonest, or that that disqualifies them from making good officers. While we may doubt the wisdom and propriety of some of the provisions of that bill it would show great narrowness of mind to accuse all its advocates with being dishonorable or dishonest. It does certainly seem to me that you should have something else besides this charge against Mr Tyner before you would be justified in making the insinuation you have in regard to him.

Right here permit me to say with my information I deplore the removal of Mr Jewell, yet I think he has a worthy successor. From the best light I have, Mr Tyner has all the qualifications necessary for a good officer—honesty, ability and experience. He was a special agent of the Postoffice Department, afterward a Representative in Congress from Indiana serving on the postal committee, then Second Assistant Postmaster General. So far as I can learn in all these positions he has made a good and faithful officer.

Mr Cameron you say "enjoys the enviable reputation of being one of the most skillful and unscrupulous of the set of corruptionists that hang on the legislature at Harrisburg and that other than this he has no reputation at all." Is the enjoyment of that reputation a sufficient excuse for you to impugn his motives and prejudge his acts? If the reputation that men enjoy were always to be accepted as correct I fear many innocent persons would be unjustly condemned. To say that Mr Cameron has no reputation except that stated above, is simply bosh. That he is a skillful politician I believe is true. What of it? I never knew that it was a crime to be a politician, aye a skillful politician. The charge that he is an unscrupulous corruptionist I think you cannot substantiate. You no doubt can find the charge made by some paper and you may find it reiterated by those carrion vultures of the press who are always hanging around ready to pounce on all the filth they can find, but to tell what, when and where the acts were committed that entitle him to that most disgraceful reputation I believe is beyond your power. To show that a man's reputation is not always the proper criterion by which to judge his integrity I would cite you to Gen Hartranft. When he was first nominated for governor of Pennsylvania it was charged that he was one of the most corrupt men in the State, that he was chief fugleman of the Simon Cameron ring, etc. These charges were so generally published and believed that some papers in that State said to secure an election he had to be "pulled through" by the rest of the ticket. Nevertheless, he has made a very good governor, and has earned the respect of all parties. This is only one of many illustrations that come to the notice of observers of passing events. Thus much by way of review.

Believing that to lessen the respect due an officer from his fellow citizens is to lessen his power to do good, and further believing the course you were pursuing would lead to that result, I wrote the letter that brought out your article and this answer. I also wished to call your attention to some things which I thought were discreditable to an independent journal. Such a paper should be too honorable to deal in rumor and second hand slander, or in any way countenance those insinuations by which the partisan press expect to make political capital at the expense of men's reputations. The habit of imputing bad motives and characters to our public men without even attempting to give the reason why is a popular and growing evil. While it is right to examine carefully the conduct of our officials and to criticise them sharply when they do wrong it is also right that we do not censure them until they deserve such treatment. Mankind whether officers or not usually have sins enough of their own to answer for without being made responsible for all the corruption that can be imagined against them. It would be much better to let wrong go unrebuked than in any manner assist in injuring an innocent person's character.

In conclusion (if you would permit a little advice) I would say, abide by the plan [illegible] and be satisfied with that alone and always remember Davy Crockett's adage, "Be sure you're right then go ahead." Very respectfully,
J.

With the improvements in progress on First street Kohn the clothier keeps pace. He is now offering a most excellent stock of new and stylish goods which all should inspect. The prices are low enough for everybody.

NOTICE.—Mrs S. [illegible], First National Bank building, having abundantly proven her ability to produce a new crop of hair in all stages of baldness, also to check falling of the hair and itching of the scalp, would advise those intending to avail themselves of her treatment to do so without delay, as business will soon take her from the State for some time. Preparations sent to all parts of the country.

One of the coolest spots in town is the Fountain where Peter Wilhelm holds forth. He keeps the best liquors and cigars, and Weinhardt's best beer. His billiard tables are excellent and the Virginius pool table continues a favorite.

W L ADAMS, M D, A M, H D, corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price by medicated electric lightning, cream baths and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is in the main entirely original and works almost miracles, as his numerous patients will attest. Is extraordinarily successful in treating female complaints.

Scrofula speedily relieved. The worst form of piles cured and the most malignant cancers eradicated root and branch without the use of the knife or the money refunded.

THE TERRITORIES

More than 10 Olympians have attended the Philadelphia Exhibition.

The Indians on some of the Puget Sound reservations have raised large crops this year.

Miss Minnie Van Wormer of Whidby island has been adjudged insane and taken to the asylum.

The fall term of the school at Olympia Union Academy will begin on Monday Sept 4th.

Messrs Edmunds and Edwards are holding a religious discussion for the entertainment of the Seattleites.

Political matters in Washington Territory are warming up. The [illegible] Frashers and the Tumwaters [illegible] what they call each other.

Mr [illegible] is having plans drawn for a vessel of about 1,000 tons to be built at Seattle. The time of laying the keel is not yet determined.

A Miss Alice [illegible], living with her parents near Snohomish, W. T., was thrown from a buggy by runaway horses on the [illegible] inst and it is feared was fatally injured.

The Walla Walla Watchman says: "[illegible] has received the appointment to a cadetship at West Point from Washington Territory, but as the young man received a severe injury about a year ago by the breaking of his [illegible] bone he fears he will not pass the examination at that institution and hence will no doubt decline."

The Unitarian Society of Olympia at a business meeting held after the services Sunday evening elected Samuel Coulter and wife, I. S. Dobbins and wife and Mr Flinn and wife delegates to the biennial Unitarian Conference which meets at Saratoga in September. These parties will represent the Olympia and Tumwater societies.

The Olympian says according to the reports of business men the Dakota's outward bound passenger and freight list on her present trip from Olympia alone will net her owners a sum little short of $2,000. For the one item of Tumwater gas and water pipe of which she took 80 cords the freight bill amounts to between $700 and $800.

The Olympian is told of a farmer in Thurston county who has held his wool crop for the last three years under the belief that that staple was much higher in the East than here and that the local traders were not offering him a fair price. He don't believe the newspapers give correct market reports, but are in collusion with the dealers. In the meantime he buys his supplies on credit and pays interest on the debt thus made, securing the same by mortgage on his homestead.

The Snohomish Star: We were called upon by Seymour Wetmore who stated that he had cut and weighed 6 tons of well cured hay upon one acre of land on his farm between Snohomish city and Lake Washington three miles southeast of town. The best of it is that the aftermath growth for pasturage this fall will be nearly half as much more. The land is of the description known as beaver dam land (willow swamp) and is not an average for the entire farm.

Promise and Performance.

The proprietors of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters promise nothing in behalf of this famous tonic and regulating elixir which it will not perform. No pretensions irreconcilable with common sense are made in reference to it but evidence of the most positive nature has been accumulating for over a quarter of a century in its behalf which proves it to be a reliable preventive and curative of malarial diseases, an efficient and genial tonic and general corrective and specially valuable in cases where the bowels, liver, stomach or urinary organs are affected. Debility, the source from whence so many bodily evils spring, is entirely remedied by the invigorative action of the Bitters, which arrests premature decay and repairs losses of nervous and muscular power while improving the appetite and rendering digestion easy.

PRICE—TEN CENTS.

A recent clandestine marriage between John Isabel, a boy of 1[illegible], and Miss Wixom aged 14, strengthened the bad feeling. The girl's parents persuaded her to return home last night. Dr Wixom of Austin sent his carriage to the ranch of his brother and the Isabel faction appear to have suspected that Dr Wixom had arrived for the purpose of removing young Isabel's wife and to have concocted a plan for the doctor's assassination. During the evening several neighbors called on Mr Wixom and one J. Stoner proposed a ride in the doctor's carriage. Stoner, Barney McMann and John Ryan entered the carriage, Stoner driving, and went in the direction of Isabel's ranch. Six men or six men and women disguised as men rose from the brush and fired into the carriage killing Stoner. The horses ran away and the assassins pursued riddling the carriage with bullets and shot. When the attack was made the murderers were close to the carriage, and thrust their guns into the faces of the occupants. The people here are intensely excited at the dastardly act, and a strong party is pursuing the murderers.

AUSTIN, Aug 12.—A party which left here yesterday for the scene of the recent tragedy on Reese river returned this morning. They report that the rancheros of Reese river assembled in force on Isabel's ranch yesterday and formed a cordon around the house in order to prevent the escape of any of the inmates before the officers arrived to make arrests. Towards evening the officers arrived and arrested the three young Isabels and the man known as the Mormon. After these arrests the citizens took charge of the Mormon and strung him up, with a view of extorting a confession from him, in which they succeeded. He is reported to have confessed himself and the three Isabel boys did the shooting, and that one of the latter is responsible for the death of Stoner. The assassins fully believed that the buggy contained either Mr. John Wixom or his brother the doctor. The facts recently elicited show that after the assassination was committed the assassins pursued the buggy a distance of [illegible]

WILLIAMS AND REFORM OR LANE AND THE BOOTY SYSTEM

Important as it is for Oregon to cast her electoral vote along with the majority and contribute to the election of Hayes and Wheeler it is even more important that she secure the best possible representative in Congress. Having but one member in the House of Representatives the citizens should see to it that that member is one who will fitly represent their sentiments and wishes. The people of Oregon are firmly and unalterably in favor of a thorough and radical reform of the civil service by the abolition of the booty system. This is one point on which there can be no question. Though the influence of the State in the general government may be comparatively small it should by all means be on the right side.

Shall we have Lafayette Lane with his narrow partisanship and his inherited and acquired prejudices against every effort to lift the country above the Democratic doctrine of political spoils for party service or Richard Williams who is a progressive man with clearly defined views in favor of a return to the Jeffersonian test of honesty and competence? Mr Williams has never failed to make himself understood on this important subject. His voice rings out clear and strong for the reform which is so urgently demanded. His word and honor are pledged to the people that he, when elected, will not be one of the Congressional politicians whose influence will be exerted to break down the efforts of the Executive to reform the country, but that whatever he can do to forward these efforts and make them successful shall be done. Mr Lane, on the contrary, being a representative of the Bourbon idea, [illegible] uttered a word for reform.

EMMA

AFFECTIONATELY DEDICATED TO THE PARENTS AND FRIENDS OF MISS EMMA STRANG

[illegible] thou art gone and thy delicate form
No more shall our human eyes ever behold
Oh! the sad thought sweeps over our minds like a storm,
And a burden falls on us of anguish untold

Sad moments, and hours sad days and sad years—
Ay, a lifetime of mourning for thee will there be
When the night candle flickers and dies will our tears
Flow afresh in the darkness and sadness for thee

Hopes of living and loving and working for thee
Have died with thy death, and are hid in thy tomb—
May the God of love ever in tenderness free
Our hearts from desponding despair and its gloom

Ay, free them and fill them with ever a hope
Of meeting and loving in Glory at last
When life with its various troubles is lived
And death with its river of terror is past

Hail now, and farewell to the love of our heart
May she rest sweetly rest, in her cold bed of clay
May her joy of the angels above be a part
And a crown be her share in the heavenly day

A THIN DEVICE.

A CONVICTED ROBBER TRYING TO PROVE HIS INNOCENCE BY A MIRACLE.

About a month ago the good folk of Sarrancolin, a Pyrenean village were awakened at midnight by the merry peals of the bells of the village church. They opened the windows, descended to the streets and soon thronged to the church square, headed by the [illegible] and bellringer who was indignant to learn who thus had usurped his functions. Greater still was their surprise to see the church windows blazing with light—light that was too steady to admit of its proceeding from a conflagration. It was an evident case of the supernatural and not a soul—not even the sexton—dared to cross the threshold of the building till daybreak when, having been reinforced by two forest rangers old soldiers, armed to the teeth he threw the [illegible] open and entered, cautiously followed by the curious and trembling crowd. A singular sight met their view. In the middle of the church was a sort of altar formed with chairs and boards, covered with hangings from the altar, sacred vestments pictures holy vessels, &c. On this was the image of the Virgin Mother, surrounded by lighted [illegible], while scrolls bearing writing were pinned to the pillars of the church. On examination these appeared to be letters from the Saviour, the Virgin Mary St Peter St John, and especially all the saints held in [illegible] affection and esteem. They were all to the same purpose, bearing testimony to the character of Jean Loo a resident of the village, who declared the celestial correspondents, was an excellent but persecuted man that had just been condemned to imprisonment for thefts of which he had been wrongfully accused. This is what St Peter wrote in very indifferent French

In the name of Christ and all the peoples of the sky and earth, you shall hereby be shown the innocent man whom false witnesses have made to suffer. It is but just that they in their turn, shall be punished. The scoundrels—should they not have blushed to do what they have done to this excellent young man, Loo of this commune! Let them give back to him his honor, the heritage of which they have robbed him!

Given under my hand and seal
SAINT PETER, Porter of Heaven

The Saviour, whose handwriting bore a marked resemblance to that of St Peter and whose literary style was no better thus impeached the testimony of the witnesses for the prosecution

The witness Defal merchant pretends that he had seen stolen goods in the hands of Lavigne. That is not surprising. He was employed in a dry goods store at Paris where he stole from his employer. He should be punished

Old Legrand after having pilfered to support his daughter, tries to make out that he has been robbed and would identify goods that do not belong to him. As he was a pet of the police he could do so safely

And so on through a list of formidable length which showed that the inhabitants of heaven kept a very close watch on the good—or bad people of Sarrancolin

So remarkable an intervention in the favor of Jean Loo could not but fail of its effect and instead of canonizing Loo they sent for the police of Bagneres. Loo was a black sheep. He and his brother occupied a small farm sufficient, however for their wants but Jean for years had neglected its cultivation and taken to the most persistent and miscellaneous thieving. Being caught at last he was sent to prison for six months. On his release being desirous of regaining the good opinion that he had forfeited he resolved to compel the intervention in his behalf of the heavenly host. Accordingly creeping into the church and hiding himself in a pew he contrived to be locked in when he erected the remarkable trophy to which reference has been made pinned up his [illegible] testimonials lit the candles climbed to the belfry and threw out the bell ropes then escaping through a window climbed a tree taking the ropes with him and from that elevated position rang the bells and watched the gathering of the excited villagers

Poor Loo [illegible] by his [illegible]. He was self-convicted [illegible] by fastening up [illegible] been [illegible] but it was their protege who had been their author. He was arraigned before the tribunal at [illegible] and [illegible] sentenced to five years imprisonment at hard labor five years surveillance by the police and the loss of his civil rights. Not even before the court did Loo's calmness and truthfulness desert him as the following passage from the proceedings will show

The President—Then prisoner you persist in denying that you took part in the sacrilegious act of which you are accused?

The Prisoner Alas sir how could I have done so? I never go out after sunset my health does not permit it

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Financial.

FRIDAY EVENING August 11 1876

Gold in New York 111¼

The general situation in financial and commercial affairs changes but little from day to day. The silver question is apparently as far from being settled as ever and meantime the heavy discount made on it is proving a serious loss to many persons whose business is done in such a way that they are compelled to receive it almost exclusively and at par their aggregate receipts being made up of small sums. Of such are retail grocers, peddlers barbers saloon keepers etc. They are under necessity compelled to accept silver in much larger quantities than they can disburse at par and hence suffer the loss of 5 per cent. on much of their earnings. A good deal of complaint is made by them but no remedy seems yet at hand

In wholesale and jobbing transactions gold is more generally used, and dealers in these departments having settled down to a gold basis with an agreed discount on silver have but little difficulty in managing the question

The aspect in general trade circles is one of quite as much activity as is usually witnessed at this season of the year when the busy scenes of the harvest are attracting almost the entire attention of a very large class of the people who support the trade of the country. Neither in the line of imported merchandise or in domestic products is there any material changes to note to-day. The delay of Congress in acting upon the Hawaiian treaty is tending rather to strengthen prices for some articles which the Pacific coast imports largely from the Sandwich Islands. There seems to be a general impression that the ratification of the treaty will work advantageously for trade here and in San Francisco but there are two sides to this question as to most others

Our local produce market is very quiet especially in the line of breadstuffs in which there is almost nothing being done. Flour is in good supply from the old crop of wheat, and though a fair local trade exists there is little inducement to shipments. Wheat is neither being offered nor are offers for it being made to any important extent
